Do you need an in-depth introduction to the processes used in soft drinks manufacture?

Do you want to learn about the practical, technical and scientific aspects involved?

Would you like the opportunity to meet and learn with others associated with the soft drinks industry in a lively and informative environment?

Whether you are new to the world of soft drinks manufacture or have been associated with the industry for a while, if you have answered 'yes' to one or more of the above question then attendance on this course is a must for you.

Tuition is provided by lecturers who work within the soft drinks industry or are consultants to the industry, all of whom have a vast wealth of knowledge and expertise.

Through presentations and demonstrations, participants will leave the course with an understanding of the practical, technical and scientific aspects involved in the production and manufacture of soft drinks.

Course topics include:

- Contamination - introduction to basic microbiology
- Water quality & treatment
- Ingredients, additives & flavourings
- Processing, filling & packing
- Functional drinks
- Packaging (primary and secondary)
